Dear Parents and Carers

Government White Paper – Information for Parents

You may be aware that the Department for Education (DfE) has published a new White Paper outlining proposed changes to aspects of the education system.

The DfE has also produced a clear and accessible overview for parents, which explains the proposals and the intended direction of travel. I know that national announcements can sometimes prompt questions or uncertainty, so I wanted to share this information with you to provide clarity and reassurance. You can read the overview here.

As with any government proposal, there will now be a period of further discussion and detail before any changes are formally implemented. We are following developments closely and considering carefully what they may mean in practice for schools and, most importantly, for our students and families.

It is worth noting that many of the principles outlined in the White Paper — particularly around inclusion and ensuring that every child receives the right support at the right time — already align with our existing practice. Our Inclusion base, The Link, is well established and reflects the intentions set out in the proposals: providing targeted, flexible support so that pupils can thrive both academically and personally within our mainstream setting.

We will continue to keep you informed as more detail becomes available. In the meantime, please do take the opportunity to read the DfE overview.

Yours faithfully

Mrs DL German
